About the corriwearing badges, but few of them are delegates and fewer still are men who will figure conspicuously in the contest. They are chiefly the mass of ordinaries who keep up the show of activity and interest until they are crowded out to make room for the real workers a little later on. The Harrison folks are the first to be on the field with representative men and they have had before leaving Washington, as there has been no material for them to work on. The delegates and general workers have just began today to arrive in respectable numbers. It is not that there is any lack of interest, but the convention is about four days off yet and there 5 is no desire to prolong the fight and increase

Some of these are big white streamers for coat lapel, making a conspicuous display, while the Indiana badge is a small piece of red, white and blue ribbon on which is fastened a picture of celluloid of Mr. Harrison. These are quite numerous in the street and hotel lobbies, and were almost without a rival until last night, when Mr. Conger and some of the other Biaine men began to give out red badges bearing a portrait and the name of James G. Blaine, with the inscription in big letters, "Vim, Vigor and Victory." Soon after these badges appeared they began to dominate in the crowd, but for the most part the wearers of both badges were men who may not have any particular preference, and whose preference, if they have any, don't amount to much. The national committee held a meeting today to decide upon a man to present to the conven-tion for this position. It is usual for the man chosen by the national committee to be elected without question from any source, but there is

The suggestion by Mr. Fassett that Prof. John M. If he is named by the national committee it is understood to be the intention of the Harrison folks to antagonize him in convention with Gen. Horace Porter of New York.
